Document 1: WO, 01/73630, A (K.K. MEDIA TECHNICAL), 04 October 2001 (04.10.01), full text, all drawings

Document 2: JP, 10-149086, A (NIPPON TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE CORPORATION), 02 June 1998 (02.06.98), paragraph 28, Fig. 9, Fig. 12

Document 3: JP, 06-077904, A (SONY CORPORATION), 18 March 1994 (18.03.94), paragraph 10, Fig. 2

Document 4: JP, 62-177140, U (SHARP CORPORATION), 10 November 1987 (10.11.87), full text, all drawings

The subject matter of claims 1, 2, and 4 does not involve an inventive step on account of document 1 and document 2 cited in the ISR and newly added document 3 and document 4.

Document 1 does not disclose the point "in a case in which there is a center unit, a plurality of answer units, and a plurality of auxiliary light projector/receivers, a relay light receiving means for receiving and relaying light signals projected by any of the auxiliary light projector/receivers, a relay signal generating means for generating relay signals according to the aforesaid relay received light signal, and a relay light projection means for projecting the aforesaid relay light using light signals are disposed in the space above a meeting place." But the invention of this application and the invention described in document 2 both address the issue of "making it possible to use multiple answer units by relaying projected and received light," and a light relay device constituted so that a received light signal is relayed without modification is well-known to a person skilled in the art, as disclosed in document 3 and document 4, so using a light relay device with a constitution known to a person skilled in the art in the invention described in document 1 in order to enable using multiple answer units by relaying projected and received light and arriving at the invention of claims 1, 2, or 4 does not appear difficult.

The subject matter of claims 3, 5, and 6 is not described in any of the documents cited in the ISR and is non-obvious to a person skilled in the art.
